All Called to be Prophets

It is something each of us needs to remember. Each one of us, simply because of our Baptism, has been called to be a prophet. We've all been called to spread the message of the Gospel, in our families, in our work places, among our friends, in our society. Whatever is happening, we have to be ready to proclaim and defend truth, love, justice, freedom and peoples rights and dignity. There are some things over which we cannot compromise; sometimes when cannot remain silent.

There are times when we may be afraid, or feel incompetent or in adequate. We can take encouragement from St. Paul in the second reading this Sunday. He had some sort of very painful affliction which he felt prevented him from preaching the Gospel effectively and he begged God to take away his suffering. The answer to his prayer was surprising. He was told that God's power shining through him shone more in his weakness. Otherwise what he said and did might have been attributed to his own brilliance. So he now totally accepts his weaknesses, because then Christ's power and light shines more clearly through him.

So, let us not be discouraged by our shortcomings whether spiritual, psychological, social or physical. God wants us to be His instrument. He will stand by us and give us what we need, when we need it. But take note – when the Church are accepted with open arms by any society then we need to be suspicious about the genuineness of what we proclaim.
